Guangzhou Electrical Building Technology 2023

Promoting the latest home automation and intelligent building digital trends

In line with current trends in building energy conservation, smart grids, smart communities and home automation, the fair will showcase a variety of products and technologies across different intelligent building fields, such as AV & home entertainment, smart hotels, real estate and smart communities.

With the Chinese government's support of these areas as detailed in its 14th Five-Year Plan, more technologies such as AI, IoT, big data, and 5G will be widely used in the country's construction projects. These digital transformations will accelerate cross-industry integration and set the stage for the next set of market trends.

Advantages of joining GEBT:

- Held concurrently with Guangzhou International Lighting Exhibition (GILE), providing a comprehensive platform for electrical engineering, intelligent buildings and lighting technologies.
- Renowned international associations regularly join the fair, introducing more in-depth discussions around standard protocols and product integration
- Up-to-date forum topics delivered by industry experts
- Thematic zones showcasing the latest products, solutions and technologies
